Press Release

Suggested heading: Chamber of Commerce Business Covid-19 Resource Online Guide Available

Wolfeboro, NH.... The Wolfeboro Area Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors has presented a series of webinars intended to help owners or those managing a business during the current pandemic.

Moderated by Chamber of Commerce President Kevin Lawlor, financial advisor with Edward Jones Investments, the panel has been made up of local professionals and government officials. Each brought an area of expertise and experience to the discussion.

The most recent webinar continued to explore how some businesses are strategically adapting their services and how the town and our healthcare professionals are responding during the current situation.

Bridget Mitchell, Esq., Walker & Varney P.C. participated on the panel with a concentration on business resources. It was explained then that as a follow up, she was compiling a wide spectrum of information that will be made available as a handout and online.

“We know that ease of access to current information is extremely important in order for businesses to operate efficiently,” explains Mitchell. “In addition to hearing information firsthand during the webinar, we want businesses to have the ongoing support of an online resource page available at their fingertips.” Each title in the document is linked to Covid-19 as it impacts business, workplace, and reopening guidance.

Ask to receive a copy of the Chamber of Commerce’s Business Covid-19 Resource Online Guide by telephone at 569-2200 or visit www.wolfeborochamber.com. A recording of the past webinars is published there, as well as the handout.
